FAQs

Q: Can we receive any notice when the plan expires/is about to expire?

A: When there is a plan is about to expire (15 days) or has already expired, the system will send an email to the enterprise's administration account email box or the email box of the plan or device owner.

Q: When the plan has already expired, is there a grace period before renewal?

A: There is no grace period. When the plan is about to expire in 15 days, there will be an email notification to ask the user to renew the plan. Once the plan expires, the user cannot use the IPVideoTalk conferencing services until the user renews the plan.

Q: What can we get when we purchase/renew the plan?

A: When the plan of a GVC device is successfully purchased/renewed, the GVC device or owner can immediately use the IPVideoTalk conferencing services in the plan without obtaining the plan number from a zip file. Grandstream will be notified through email if the verification is passed or failed. If there is a problem with the order, the verification will be failed, and the plan purchase/renew operation will be failed.

Q: Can we transfer the plan from one sub-user to another sub-user?

A: Yes. If the plan is not for GVC device, the administrator can assign it to any sub-user.

Q: How to renew/upgrade the plan if the GVC device is not bound to an IPVideoTalk Portal account?

A: There are two solutions:

- Contact Grandstream Sales to purchase/upgrade plan.
- Register an account on IPVideoTalk Portal and bind the GVC device to the account in order to purchase the plan for the device. Please refer to the IPVideoTalk Portal User Guide for detailed information.

Q: For each plan, can it host more than one meeting at the same time?

A: No. For one single plan, the user can use it to schedule multiple meetings, but the user can only host one meeting at the same time. The user needs to end the current meeting before starting next meeting. If the user wants to start multiple meetings at the same time, the user needs to purchase more plans.
